Protection Against a Total Loss

What is GAP Protection?

Too often people assume that insurance companies will cover any loss related to their vehicle. In reality, the Actual Cash Value an insurance company places on your vehicle may be substantially less than the outstanding finance contract balance. Consequently, if your vehicle is damaged or stolen and is deemed a total loss, you may be responsible for the "GAP". This "GAP" is the difference between the amount required to pay off the retail installment sales contract or lease agreement and the Actual Cash Value determined by the insurance company.

Security

Pays off the remaining principal balance on your finance contract, plus your deductible*, in the event of a total loss.

Flexibility

GAP Protection is available to cover most types of finance contracts, including retail installment sales contracts and lease agreements.

Benefits

- Covers finance contract up to 150% of the vehicle's MSRP or Retail Value.
- $25,000 maximum claim amount.
- Covers Primary Insurance Deductible up to $500.

Why GAP is Necessary

The difference between the Actual Cash Value of your vehicle and the amount of money you owe on your finance contract is called the "GAP". You are responsible for paying this GAP amount to settle your finance contract if a total loss occurs.

How GAP Works

Amount owed on Finance Contract	$23,000
Actual Cash Value of vehicle	- $20,000
GAP	$3,000
Primary insurance deductible (if applicable)	+ $500
Total out-of-pocket expense	$3,500
GAP Protection payment*	$3,500
Total owed to pay off Finance Contract	$0

Coverage exclusions will apply*

- Any late charges, deferred payments, payment extensions and other charges on your finance contract.
- Any cancellable items to which you are entitled a refund.
